

PRIVACY POLICY

Any personal and financial information collected by Imperial Vaults will be collected and stored in compliance within Australian laws and regulations. Imperial Vaults will keep your personal information private in accordance with the Australian National Privacy Principles set out in the Privacy Act 1988 (Cth). Other than as required by law, or as authorised by law, or by you, we will not pass on, sell or swap any of your personal information and such information will be used by Imperial Vaults for invoicing information.

As permitted by law, Imperial Vaults may engage a third party host provider to enable Imperial Vaults to provide its services to you and such third party may be granted access to your personal information for the purpose of providing those services. In order to ensure the protection of your personal information, Imperial Vaults will, prior to engaging any third party provider, undertake a thorough due diligence process to ensure that Imperial Vaults is satisfied that sufficient security measures are implemented by the third party and by Imperial Vaults (where possible) for the protection of your personal information. All Imperial Vault client digital data is stored within Australia on encrypted servers maintained by a private security contractor.

Imperial Vaults will also undertake regular security audits to ensure that the third party security measures are maintained and will review, both prior to and during the third party provider's engagement, the reputation and reviews of the top customers of the third party to satisfy itself that the third party is, and continues to be, a reputable provider.
